Photos will be available for download via the Media Photo Bank on SmugMug (Please email Taylor Dean (below) for the password). All photos must be credited to "Jay Adefeff/U.S. Figure Skating" must adhere to media usage guidelines (editorial use only, credit must be given). For specific requests, please email Taylor Dean (tdean@usfigureskating.org) prior to the start of competition.

Media Availability

Athletes (by request) will be asked to be available to the media after their official practices at Bridgestone Arena (As always, requested athletes will go through the mixed zone after both competitive performances and the top 3 after each segment of competition will be in a press conference).

All additional interview requests will be handled on a case-by-case basis. Junior-level athletes will be available by request in the mixed zone or for one-on-one interviews. Please see a member of the U.S. Figure Skating communications staff to make a request.

Remote Interviews, Mixed Zone and Press Conferences

Both in-person and remote media members will have the opportunity to ask questions in the mixed zone and press conference, starting with in-person media members.

All remote credential holders will be able to access the mixed zone and press conferences through a provided link and password (These will be emailed out to remote credential holders prior to the start of official practice). Please do not share these links with anyone (doing so will result in the removal of your access privileges). All competition mixed zones and press conferences will be archived and available for on demand viewing. As such, there will be no written quotes provided at this event. Mixed zone interactions at practice sessions will NOT be recorded. No interviews will be facilitated following warm-up sessions.

Interview protocol:

For the short programs/rhythm dance, athletes will be brought through the mixed zone by request only. For the free skate/free dance, athletes in the second group will all be brought through, while athletes from the first group will be brought through by request only.

Remote media must submit their requested athletes by emailing Marissa Pederson (mpederson@usfigureskating.org) at least two hours before the first competition of the day.

On-site media can submit their requested athletes in person or via email.

On-site media members will have the opportunity to ask questions first using a microphone so the remote media can also hear the question. On-site media must comply with social distancing guidelines and wear a mask at all times. Athletes and on-site media will be speaking into a microphone to ensure all can hear them.

After the on-site members are finished asking questions, remote media will have the opportunity to ask a question. Remote media should indicate their interest in asking a question via the chat function as soon as the athlete gets into the mixed zone/press conference area. See full Zoom etiquette below.

Remote media must adhere to the follow etiquette on all Zoom calls:

- It is suggested that media members use the video option to call into Zoom. Athletes will have the ability to see the media during all mixed zone and press conference interactions. While credential holders can call in on their phones, they will be unable to message the moderator and therefore unable to ask a question.
- Media members must use their first and last name, as well as their media outlet, as their Zoom name (ex. Marissa Pederson, U.S. Figure Skating). There will be a virtual waiting room and you will only be admitted if you use the name from your credential application. Please make sure your name is listed in English so we can easily identify you.

- Once admitted into the Zoom room, media members must have their audio muted. The moderator will only unmute you when it is your turn to speak. Athletes will be able to see you during all interviews held over Zoom.
- Once prompted by the moderator, those wanting to ask a question should tell the moderation via the Zoom chat function. The moderator will call on those wanting to ask a question and unmute them. After the question has been answered, you will be re-muted.
- To "pin" the athlete Zoom box to your main screen, right click on their Zoom square and then select "pin". This will ensure that the athlete is always visible to you even when other people are speaking.
- Mixed zone interviews and press conferences will be on SEPARATE Zoom calls. This is different from last season. After the final athlete has come through the mixed zone for a competition segment, that call will be ended and you will need to join the press conference call for that discipline. On-demand videos will be timestamped for athletes in the mixed zone.

On-demand Interviews

Mixed zone session from competition days will be available to media members following the event (uploaded upon availability). Videos will be time-stamped.

The Athletes

At the 2021 U.S. Figure Skating Championships in Las Vegas, Bradie Tennell (ladies), Nathan Chen (men), Alexa Knierim and Brandon Frazier (pairs), and Madison Hubbell and Zachary Donohue (ice dance) were crowned champions.

Chen won his fifth straight title in the Championship competition. Tennell became the first woman to win a second U.S. title after a three-year gap (2018, '21) since Theresa Weld won her first title in 1914 and her second in 1920. Hubbell and Donohue won their third U.S. title (2018, '19, '21). Knierim and Frazier captured the pairs title in their first season together, with Knierim winning back-to-back titles after taking the crown with husband and former partner Chris Knierim in 2020.

Ladies:

After winning her second U.S. title in Las Vegas, Bradie Tennell placed ninth at the 2021 World Championships and competed at World Team Trophy. Unfortunately, the 2018 Olympian has yet to compete this season due to a foot injury. She will make her season debut and look to qualify for her second Olympic team in Nashville.

Amber Glenn had a breakout performance at the 2021 Toyota U.S. Championships in Las Vegas, garnering the silver medal. She had Grand Prix assignments at Skate America and NHK Trophy this season, finishing sixth and seventh, respectively. She closed the fall season with silver at Golden Spin. The Texas-based skater has attempted a triple Axel on numerous occasions this season and will look to land her first clean 3A in competition in Nashville.

Karen Chen is the 2017 U.S. champion and a member of the 2018 Olympic Team. Last year, Chen grabbed the bronze medal at the U.S. Championships and went on to finish fourth at the World Championships, playing a key role in securing three entries for the U.S. at the 2022 Olympic Winter Games. She competed at Skate Canada International and Internationaux de France this fall, placing 10th and fifth, respectively.

Alysa Liu made her senior international debut this fall, claiming the women's title at Lombardia Trophy and Nebelhorn Trophy. Her win at Nebelhorn confirmed the third Olympic women's entry for Team USA. The 2021 U.S. pewter medalist finished in the top five at both of her Grand Prix assignments. She is also a two-time U.S. champion (2019, '20).

After a disappointing fifth-place finish at the 2021 U.S. Championships, Mariah Bell has had a strong Grand Prix season, placing sixth at Internationaux de France and fourth at Rostelecom Cup. Bell will compete in hopes of claiming her first U.S. title and a berth to the Olympic Team.

Lindsay Thorngren placed sixth at the 2021 U.S. Championships, her first appearance at the championship level. She went on to earn two medals on the Junior Grand Prix circuit and qualified for the Junior Grand Prix Final (the event was ultimately postponed due to the pandemic). The 2020 U.S. junior champion also made her senior international debut this fall, finishing fifth at Warsaw Cup.

Isabeau Levito will make her championship-level debut in Nashville after claiming the 2021 U.S. junior ladies title. The New Jersey-based skater also qualified for the Junior Grand Prix Final, medaling at her two Series assignments, but ultimately withdrew from the event due to injury. Just shy of Olympic eligibility, Levito will look to make a splash at Bridgestone Arena.

Men:

Nathan Chen became the first man to win fifth straight U.S. titles (2017-21) since Dick Button won seven in a row (1946-52). He continued to make history in March, winning his third straight World title (the first to do so since Scott Hamilton won four in a row from 1981-84). However, his historic winning streak was cut short at 2021 Skate America where he finished third behind Vincent Zhou and Shoma Uno. The 2018 Olympian claimed the title at Skate Canada International to punch his ticket to the Grand Prix Final, but the event was ultimately postponed.

Vincent Zhou collected his sixth consecutive U.S. Championships medal in Las Vegas, earning silver. After missing the free skate at the World Championships, Zhou rallied back to win Nebelhorn Trophy and confirm the third U.S. men's entry for the Olympics. He continued to build momentum throughout the season, winning his first Grand Prix Series title at Skate America and silver at NHK Trophy to qualify for his first Grand Prix Final (which was postponed). The 2018 Olympian will look to top the U.S. men's podium for the first time and secure his spot on the 2022 Olympic Team.

Jason Brown helped the U.S. make history this fall, earning medals at Skate Canada International and Internationaux de France to become the third U.S. man to qualify for the Grand Prix Final. Brown earned the 2021 U.S. bronze medal and finished seventh at the World Championships. He is also a 2014 Olympic bronze medalist in the Team Event and will fight to get back on the Olympic Team after missing in 2018.

Jimmy Ma had a career-best sixth-place finish at the 2021 U.S. Championships. This fall, the New York native collected medals at Cranberry Cup, U.S. International Figure Skating Classic and Golden Spin. Ma has also set new international best scores this season and will look to get on the U.S. podium for the first time at the championship level.

Though absent from the 2021 U.S. Championships, Ilia Malinin has proven he is a contender for the U.S. podium with a strong fall season. The Virginia native won his two Junior Grand Prix events to qualify for the Final (which was postponed) and earned the bronze medal at his senior international debut at Cup of Austria. He will hit championship ice for the first time in Nashville.

Pairs:

Alexa Knierim and Brandon Frazier set the bar high during their debut season, winning Skate America, U.S. Championships and placing seventh at Worlds. This season, the Irvine-based duo collected their first Grand Prix medal, bronze at Internationaux de France, and finished fourth at Skate America. They will skate to defend their title and qualify for their first Olympics as a team (Knierim is a 2018 Olympian with husband and former partner Chris Knierim).

Jessica Calalang and Brian Johnson earned their second consecutive U.S. silver medal in Las Vegas. The Irvine-based team had to sit out of the World Championships due to a USADA violation that was later reversed. They went on to place fifth at Skate America and earn the silver medal at Warsaw Cup.

Ashley Cain-Gribble and Timothy LeDuc are the 2019 U.S. pairs champions. After earning bronze at the 2021 event in Las Vegas, the Texas-based team finished ninth at the World Championships, helping secure two Olympic entries in pairs for the United States. They have collected medals at three of their four international assignments this fall, earning bronze at Finlandia Trophy, Autumn Classic International and Skate Canada International.

Audrey Lu and Misha Mitrofanov earned their first U.S. Championships medal last year, grabbing pewter in Las Vegas. The duo had top-five finishes at their Grand Prix assignments, NHK Trophy and Rostelecom Cup. The Boston-based duo won gold at Golden Spin and grabbed bronze at the John Nicks International Pairs Challenge.

Ice dance:

Madison Hubbell and Zachary Donohue have finished on the podium at every competition since the 2019 World Championships. Last season, they earned their third U.S. title (2021, '19, '18) and second World medal. This fall, the 2018 Olympians won Skate America and grabbed silver at Grand Premio d'Italia to secure their spot in the Grand Prix Final (which was ultimately postponed). They look to join their second Olympic Team.

Madison Chock and Evan Bates are two-time U.S. champions and two-time Olympians. The 2021 U.S. silver medalists finished fourth at the World Championships and earned the silver medal at Skate America and NHK Trophy this fall to qualify for the Grand Prix Final (which was postponed). Chock is a two-time Olympian and Bates is a three-time Olympian. If they qualify for the 2021 Olympic Team, Bates will become the first U.S. figure skater to go to four Olympic Games.

Kaitlin Hawayek and Jean-Luc Baker have earned the bronze medal at the previous three U.S. Championships. The duo finished ninth at the 2021 World Championships and fifth at Rostelecom Cup earlier this season. They closed the fall season with a win at Golden Spin.

Caroline Green and Michael Parsons earned their first U.S. Championships medal last season, earning pewter in Las Vegas. The Virginia-based team has found success on the Challenger Series, claiming bronze at Autumn Classic International and Warsaw Cup. They also had top-five finishes at their two Grand Prix assignments.

Christina Carreira and Anthony Ponomarenko return to Championship ice after withdrawing last season. The 2020 U.S. pewter medalists placed fifth and eighth at Internationaux de France and Skate Canada International, respectively. In the off season, Carreira and Ponomarenko moved to train in at the I.A.M facility in London, Ontario, with 2018 Olympic champion Scott Moir.

Storylines

In addition to the ample field of play storylines, this major event has many other off-ice or event-related stories worth telling.

- Centennial Celebration: U.S. Figure Skating launched its Centennial Celebration in 2021. Founded in 1921, U.S. Figure Skating is one of the first U.S. Olympic sport governing bodies to celebrate its 100th anniversary. Throughout the year and culminating with the 2022 Toyota U.S. Figure Skating Championships in Nashville, Tennessee, the Centennial Celebration will spotlight figure skating's everyday heroes, its iconic and inspirational athletes, the vital networks that support skaters and members clubs across the nation. The campaign focuses on three core areas of engagement: content, experiences and philanthropy, with a strong focus on digital and virtual interactions during the first half of 2021. Learn more about the Centennial Celebration at Usfigureskating100.org.

- Skating Parents/Families: Many parents, some of whom were skaters themselves, use their annual vacation time to attend their children's competitions. Their support started when their children took their first steps onto the ice (kids begin skating as young as 2). Several parents coach their children, especially at the lower levels of the U.S. Figure Skating competitive structure.
- Time Commitment: Skaters at the highest levels of the U.S. Figure Skating competitive structure train 5-6 days a week and often put in hours most Americans dedicate to a full-time job.
- Off-ice Training: In addition to time spent training on the ice (averaging between 3-6 hours a day depending on discipline), skaters work with personal trainers, physical and massage therapists and attend camps, yoga, Pilates classes, etc.
- The U.S. Figure Skating Championships are planned over a span of 1-3 years. The local organizing committee works with U.S. Figure Skating to plan the event. The 2022 U.S. Championships LOC is made up of the Nashville Sports Council with support from the Scott Hamilton Skating Academy and the Nashville Predators
- Nashville is home to 1984 Olympic champion Scott Hamilton, who runs the Scott Hamilton Skating Academy. Kori Ade is also an Olympic level coach who moved to Nashville to grow the elite levels of the sport in the Nashville area.
- The U.S. Championships return to Nashville for just the second time, with the event first taking place at the newly opened Bridgestone Arena in 1997. Nashville is home to Olympic champion Scott Hamilton, who founded the Scott Hamilton Skating Academy, which highlights the strength and growth of the Nashville skating community.
- Throughout championship weekend, local musicians will descend on Bridgestone Arena to help celebrate the U.S. Championships. A full list will be available on-site.
- The Team: Athletes are supported by their coaches, choreographers, trainers, families and friends. Many coaches work with several elite athletes and work as part of a coaching team to ensure each athlete gets the proper attention.
- Judges/Officials: All U.S. Figure Skating judges and officials are volunteers, many of whom have been the sport for decades. Several judges the U.S. Championships have been to World Championships and Olympic Games.
- Music/Announce: In addition to judges and officials, those who play the music and announce the competition are appointed through U.S. Figure Skating and work on a volunteer basis. Many of these people have worked since the time of vinyl records.

- The event medical team is imperative to keeping athletes, coaches, judges and even staff healthy. The services, provided by Kaiser Permanente, will run the gamut from dispensing Advil and ice to taping ankles and giving massages. Medical staff is required to sit rinkside whenever athletes are on the ice.
- Ice technicians are responsible for ensuring the ice surface is in great shape for competition. U.S. Figure Skating has a team of volunteers who are appointed to events as the ice maintenance crew. This team works closely with the building operations team to build and maintain the ice.
- NBC: NBC Sports carries coverage of the U.S. Championships. NBC and USA Network will broadcast nearly 20 hours of live coverage during championship weekend and also broadcast the Prevagen Skating Spectacular during a two-hour show on Saturday, Jan. 15. The entire competition—both junior and senior levels—will be broadcast live on Peacock Premium. Terry Gannon, Johnny Weir, Tara Lipinski, Tanith White (Belbin) and Andrea Joyce will provide coverage.
- Figure Skating Greats: Many of the greats of our sport are very active in the skating community and many will descend on Nashville for the championship events. In fact, this year, nearly all U.S. Olympic Figure Skating champions will be honored on Sunday during the Smucker's Skating Spectacular.
- The U.S. Championships will see fans return for the first time since 2020. Due to the COVID-19 pandemic, the 2021 Toyota U.S. Figure Skating Championships were conducted in a tight bubble in Las Vegas.
- Hall of Fame: At the 2022 U.S. Championships, two classes of U.S. Figure Skating Hall of Fame inductees will be celebrated. The 2021 class of Johnny Weir, the late Sandy Lamb and Gale Tanger will be officially inducted after their ceremony was postponed last year. The 2022 class of Tiffany Chin, the late Vicki Korn and Lucy Joyce Brennan will be inducted as the newest members of the U.S. Figure Skating Hall of Fame.
- Qualifying Structure: Skaters qualify for the U.S. Championships via the U.S. Figure Skating qualifying season. Athletes competed at U.S. Figure Skating Championships Series competitions throughout the fall to earn berths in Nashville. Athletes could also earn a bye to the U.S. Championships based on various criteria.
